

According to Batman On Film, the second full theatrical trailer for The Dark Knight Rises (third if you count the teaser) will debut in front of big Warner Bros. release, Tim Burton's Dark Shadows. While it may seem apt that it should be attached to a film from the man who helmed Batman back in 1989, the site also has a theory that we may see it even sooner. Here's what they claim to have been told. "I got a heads up that the next trailer for THE DARK KNIGHT RISES will come in mid to late May -- possibly with DARK SHADOWS. I figured Warner Bros. might attach the next one with WRATH OF THE TITANS on March 30th and I still believe that could happen. Stay tuned." Here's hoping the studio release it online a little sooner this time so we won't have to endure a week of poor quality bootlegs

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=52671&t=Third_Trailer_For_THE_DARK_KNIGHT_RISES_To_Debut_In_May_With_DARK_SHADOWS