

An international version of that amazing first trailer for Logan was released earlier today, and while most of it is identical to the original, there are a couple of extra shots towards the end that are sure to get berserker-rage fans hyped. The new footage features Hugh Jackman's iconic mutant popping his claws... and then popping them right through an unfortunate baddie's bonce. They're very brief shots, but the actual movie is no doubt filled with similarly R-rated violence. Might be a while before we see a full red-band trailer, but this should suffice for now. Logan hits theaters March 3, 2017.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/the_wolverine/this-international-trailer-for-logan-reveals-why-the-movie-a146172