

Supporting a previous report that uncovered details from today's continuation of filming for Thor: The Dark World in London, England, set photos and videos have now surfaced online. While not revealing much, they do display the locations that'll showcase London "in a major way" at some point during the sequel. And more importantly, the videos, which were recorded from the Royal Naval College set at Greenwich, showcase a number of Londoners "running from (CG added) spaceships." With no stars of the Alan Taylor-directed sequel in sight, check out videos! Special thanks to CBM's @Nailbiter for the heads up! UPDATE: UK photographer Vickie Flores has provided great closeup photos from the shoot, via Greenwich.co.uk

Marvel Studios' "Thor: The Dark World" continues the big-screen adventures of Thor, the Mighty Avenger, as he battles to save Earth
