

The new issue of HellHound magazine will be hitting newsstands next months and the website Dark Shadows News has an excerpt of the interview that was conducted with Tim Burton. With the film's opening just a few short months away, fans still haven't seen a teaser, but potential descriptions of the trailers have leaked. If those descriptions are authentic, it would seem that the remake of the cult soap opera will be marketed as a comedy. But, when asked about the rumored humor, the director had this to say: "It's news to me... I always start things with the most serious of intentions. I sometimes find humour in things that aren't funny and vice versa." As you may have heard quite often is that Tim Burton and star, Johnny Depp were huge fans of the original series when growing up. Both boast of racing home from school just to make sure they didn't
