

Yesterday Jonathan Liebesman jumped into the fray with comments surrounding the new TMNT movie. He told Collider, ""Look, it's so funny—if everyone was such a die-hard fan, they would know that the TCRI canisters where the ooze comes from. That is alien ooze. Now I'm not saying what Michael said is exactly what the movie is, because we're sitting in a room now figuring everything out." During the week long controversy I have reported that Peter Laird, co-creator of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles has been extremely critical of Bay's comments, and now he has responded to Liebesman explanation. "I read the director's comments and found them to be vague and open to different interpretations... one of the most obvious of which is, sadly, that the Turtles are from an alien race. Which is exactly what Michael Bay said. I guess we'll have to wait and see." -- PL "I think it's clear

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=56901>