

We have gotten a ton of video footage and still images from Christopher Nolan's TDKR Pittsburgh set. One could think that this might have a negative effect on the final outcome. Tom Hardy however isn't too worried about all this leaked material. Check out below what the talented british actor had to say. "No, I don't think so," Tom told Access Hollywood on Saturday as he promoted his newest box office feature, the Mixed Marital Arts-themed "Warrior," in Beverly Hills. "I think there's a certain inevitability if you're going to shoot in the middle of the street — that it's very hard to block off the entire street from people taking photographs," Tom continued. "But that doesn't mean it's going to be anything like the film. You have people taking photographs from a distance of what's going on on the ground. It bears very little resemblance to what's going on." The Dark Knight Rises

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/CoastToCoastStation/news/?a=44813&t=Tom_Hardy_Shares_His_Thoughts_On_Leaked_iTDKRi_Set_Photos