

Got a pinch of salt handy? Good, because you'll need it for this report from British tabloid, The Sun. While I must confess that these claims do in fact sound extremely likely, the source isn't exactly the most reliable, but here is an excerpt from the report for you guys to judge for yourselves via Monsters And Critics. Actor Tom Hardy has reportedly been wearing specially made shoes fitted with three-inch lifts on the set of the latest Batman film The Dark Knight Rises. Hardy, who is 5ft 9in, has been wearing them so he can be the same size as co-stars Morgan Freeman and Christian Bale. According to British newspaper The Sun, the movie's producers wanted his character, Bane, to be around the same height as Batman and Morgan's Lucius Fox, who are both over 6ft. The 33-year-old has also allegedly been wearing a voice box which controls the pitch of his speech.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46289&t=Tom_Hardy_Wearing_Three_Inch_Lifts_And_A_Voice_Box_For_iThe_Dark_Knight_Risesi