

In The Avengers, Tom Hiddleston's Loki will square off against each member of the superhero team, meaning that he had the most fight sequences of any cast member to learn. For that reason, the British actor knew he would have to spend a lot of time in the stunt gym. "I have bruises all over my body, but it's called 'The Avengers' and if it wasn't action- packed, we've failed to do our jobs," the actor reveals. "We have the greatest stunt team in the world led by R.A. Rondell and Jon Eusebio, so the first thing I did when I got to Albuquerque was hit the stunt gym. I started going through the movements and as I did more and more, I started reconnecting to the character because I believe how you move informs everyone of who you are." "I love shooting action because my brain switches off and it's almost

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=57253>