

Stuntman Paul Lacovara has contributed his stunt performing expertise to films such as Transformers, Pirates of the Caribbean, The Green Hornet, and prominently Marvel's Thor; doubling for actor Tom Hiddleston. With "Loki" returning for The Avengers, so will Lacovara. And recently chatting with Italian site Comicus, he elaborated on the experience working on the summer blockbuster, Loki's helmet and attire, director Joss Whedon, potential challenges and of course all the action. What were your feelings taking part of another movie from Marvel Studios, with such an important cast? What was it like working with Tom Hiddleston again? Does he ever ask you for advice before a scene? "I felt very excited to get the call to work on another Marvel film. The fact that it was for The Avengers was a huge thrill! I knew I would be seeing many of the same producers and other crew from Thor and was

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=52474&t=Tom_Hiddlestons_Loki_Stunt-Double_Paul_Lacovara_Discusses_Working_On_THE_AVENGERS