

Recently checking my inbox, I stumbled across an unfamiliar email with "The Avengers" as the subject, which of course is next year's most highly-anticipated film. Opening the email, evidently, I discovered first-hand that a foreigner, attending a French Film session, was among others privately invited to "evaluate" a new international 3D trailer for the superhero extravaganza flick. Keeping his name undisclosed for obvious reasons, I will however share with you what he so kindly shared with me. Before you read the following, know that it was transcribed with Google's Translator, and more importantly, that I'm obviously not too familiar with the sender's validity. However, it's quite plausible, considering there's small things mentioned below that I personally remember reading in outdated interviews and actually seeing being filmed in set videos months ago, among other ways. So, with that said, read at your own risk. And check the sender's review, revealing the runtime

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=50754&:t=Tons_Of_Possible_Details_Revealed_For_An_Upcoming_Trailer_for_THE_AVENGERS