

Well it's that simple. Here's my list of the most disappointing comic book movies of all time. (core franchises only)

1. Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice: Makes the list as number one due to the insane amount of hype that surrounded it just to fall like a stone. Even now it's hard to see how DC could have dropped the ball on what could arguably be the most important movie in WB history. I call it the most important due to it being the only film in WB/DC history meant to spawn an entire filmverse of movies. This movie was way to crucial to end up being even the slightest bit questionable. But we know how that turned out...RAZZIES anyone? Also critically panned and under performed by 100's of millions.
2. Spider-man 3: I was a HUGE Spider-man fan when that movie came out. Spider-man 2 was like the best movie ever. I'm still in shock

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/dc_comics/top-10-biggest-cbm-disappointments-of-all-time-core-franchises-a148901