

Up-and-coming screenwriter Christina Hodson has really been a roll lately. Her film Shut In just opened in theaters today, she has another project, titled Unforgettable, lined up for next year, and she very recently cracked the script for Paramount Pictures' upcoming Transformers spin-off film, which will be centered on the fan-favorite Autobot Bumblebee. She's also been featured on The Black List three different times and already sold one of her specs, titled The Eden Project, to Sony & Material Pictures for a hefty sum. As part of Deadline's lengthy report, which confirmed that Paramount was extremely bullish on Hodson's spin-off script and had plans to send it out to directors fairly soon, they went on to discuss her upcoming projects, which includes a reboot of The Fugitive, and slyly revealed that Hodson is also currently in the midst of penning the script for an untitled DC Film for Warner Bros. Pictures. Now, as for which film, that's yet-to-be determined. Considering her track record of

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/dc\_comics/transformers-spin-off-scribe-christina-hodson-is-working-on-an-a146713