

According to many sources, Transformers Director Michael Bay and star Shia LaBeouf have both indicated that Transformers: Dark of the Moon would be their last go-round with the franchise. It appears that some of their co-stars are not in agreement with those indications. Tyrese Gibson has made quite the prediction for a fourth movie involving Bay and LaBeouf... "My humble prediction would be that... we're at $1.1 billion. This is the biggest year of my life. I'm on the other side of $1.7 billion in box office receipts, between both films. I think, with the success of Transformers: Dark of the Moon, both Michael Bay and Shia probably want a break from the franchise, but there's no way, I believe, that, at some point, they're not going come back to do Transformers 4. Maybe they need a few years to get a few other creative things out of their system,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/johnarturo/news/?a=46751&t=Tyrese Gibson Predicts that Bay and LaBeouf Return for iTransformers 4i