

Talking to Eurogamer, Nolan North (best known for voicing Nathan Drake in the Uncharted series of video games) has revealed how he managed to score a minor role in Star Trek 2. "I just worked on Star Trek 2 with J. J. Abrams. The reason I did that movie - it's a very small role - but it's because he and his son are huge fans of Uncharted. I met him doing some work on Super 8 and he said 'We're doing Star Trek, you wanna do it?' And I said I'd love to." "He's a huge fan of gaming and he was telling me how people just don't understand [the medium] yet, but they're going to catch up," he added. "They don't understand how amazing this technology is and it doesn't get the respect it deserves, but if it keeps making the money it makes you're going to see more and

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=60366>