

Talking at 'The Television Critics Association', ABC Entertainment President Paul Lee offered an update on the status on the small screen adaptations of Marvel comic book characters, Jessica Jones and the Hulk. Thanks to The Wrap for the following excerpt. I'll be sure to update the article with further information about the upcoming series' if and when it becomes available. ABC is redeveloping the Marc Cherry pilot "Hallelujah" and is working on the Marvel Comics-inspired shows "A.K.A. Jessica Jones" and "The Hulk" with an eye toward next pilot season, ABC entertainment president Paul Lee said Sunday. UPDATE: Thanks to a heads up from CBM's own RorMachine, here are a few quotes from Lee, posted over at IGN TV. Be sure to head on over to that site by clicking the link to hear even more from him. "We're extremely excited by having Marvel in the fold. We've developing aggressively both AKA Jessica Jones (based

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=43862&t=font_color_redUPDATEfont_iAKA_Jessica_Jonesi_And_iThe_Hulki_Set_To_Debut_As_Early_As_Next_Year