

Model turned actress, Rila Fu-kushima, has posted a part of a document that was handed out to the crew of The Wolverine. It's a collection of useful Japanese phrases on the left, with an easy, and sometimes humorous version of how to pronounce the phrases on the right. As for filming for the past few days, Hugh Jackman and extras were seen wearing winter attire. Certainly wouldn't want to be Hugh for the past few days with that flannel shirt on and having the temperature spiking over eighty degrees. ヒュージャックマン っ っ っ twitter.com/junpei32krn/st... — junpei (@junpei32krn) September 10, 2012 For the past several days they've been filming in Tomonoura. A port in Ichichi ward of Fukuyama, Hiroshima Prefecture, Japan, which is doubling as Nagasaki in the film. The area is known for it's gorgeous scenery and numerous historical temples and shrines. Some of the scenes being filmed involved Hugh Jackman holding hands and walking with Tao Okamoto

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=67078>