

The Hollywood Reporter reveals that the following props from Captain America: The First Avenger, Iron Man 2 and Thor will go up for sale at the Chicago Comic and Entertainment Expo on April 14 (L.A.-based auction house Profiles in History will conduct the sale). Items include Captain America's shield (made of resin) as well as his three piece custom made suit (made of ballistic nylon) and the iconic leather mask/helmet combo. It's expected to fetch $20,000 - $30,000. The Iron Man Mark II "Autopsy" suit from the 2010 movie will also be up for grabs. This is the armour which Rhidey and Justin Hammer were seen inspecting in the movie. It is designed to be lied down and a number of plates can be removed to reveal the inner circuitry. The suit was designed to lie down for the autopsy scene and has a number of removable armour plates which expose the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=55815>