

Continuing promotion that commenced with last summer's Thor and Captain America: The First Avenger films, it seems Upper Deck will be reteaming with Marvel Studios, producing trading cards for The Avengers movie. The first details have recently been revealed courtesy of Sports Card Info. You remember last year, exclusive still photos from Thor and Captain America movies were featured on most of the trading cards, so we have that to look forward to in a couple months. Anyhow, with more detailed info to be announced, check out presentation slides and their transcript below.
