

If you're a fan of the Deus Ex franchise, then we have some bad news for you today. However, if you're a Marvel fan then it's actually pretty good! According to Eurogamer (via Game Fragger), Square Enix's recent shift in focus to a multi-game Marvel project has led to a follow-up to Mankind Divided being put on hold, a shame considering the fact that the last instalment ended on a pretty major cliffhanger. What the future holds in store for that series now remains to be seen, and there's a very good chance it could be dead. With most of Eidos Montreal (the Deus Ex developers) working on the next Tomb Raider game, a small team has assembled to help out with that Avengers title we recently heard about. However, here's where things get really exciting; they're also in the very early stages of producing a new Guardians of the Galaxy game and it's thought that it will be all hands on deck

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/guardians_of_the_galaxy/video-games-a-new-guardians-of-the-galaxy-title-is-in-the-a148550