

Among the news surrounding Marvel's newest MMO video game, Marvel Universe Online, were in fact that comic book writer Brian Michael Bendis was helmed to write the script, that the game would allow players to use the actual Marvel characters in game and, most surprisingly, that the game will be free to play. Bendis also adds "The reason that I was so desperate to be a part of this is that I'm a big believer that the Marvel universe is more than just this fantasy universe, it's kind of a lifestyle for a lot of people. It reminds me of what Stan Lee did in the 60's by making the audience part of Marvel". Bendis also revealed that the gameplay, would allow players to play as actual Marvel characters, walking through the big events of the Marvel Universe from the classic 60's comics and through every era of Marvel history. So far,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatmanvsWolverine/news/?a=36197&t=VIDEO_GAMES_First_Details_of_iMarvel_Universe_Online_revealed