

Even though we don't have any details, it seems that it's finally confirmed: Hideo Kojima is back for another installment of the Metal Gear Solid franchise! And no, it's NOT Metal Gear Solid: Rising, that is coming out next year featuring Raiden. Official PlayStation Magazine UK has all the new details inside the latest issue about the new game, which will be available on November 29. "As part of our world exclusive chat and photo shoot, he also gives his open and frank opinions on Metal Gear Solid Rising – the first PlayStation MGS he's neither written nor directed – and openly discusses his plans for Metal Gear Solid 5 and Project Ogre for the first time." Found via Game Informer. Now, if you are a fan of these games, this could only be a great news. And if you played the last game Metal Gear Solid 4: Guns of the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=49984&t=VIDEO_GAMES_Hideo_Kojima_Confirms_Metal_Gear_Solid_5_Plans