

Nightwing vs Superman! No, that is not a mullet. It does look like that, eh? At San Diego Comic-Con, Injustice: Gods Among Us has its presence felt along with new character reveals. Ed Boon now reveals the game adds Cyborg and Nightwing to its already growing roster of characters. Now, TheVerge reports that they were able to play the highly-anticipated video game and dish on the fighting styles of each character. Nightwing's life before crime-fighting consists of major acrobatics at Haly's Circus, so it's only right they add it into his fighting style. After he became Nightwing, he developed signature weapons and it is confirmed that his trademark staff will be in the game. Even though the former sidekick of Batman has his staff for long-ranged attacks, it can be split into halves with the press of a special button (B on Xbox 360, most likely to be circle on PS3)
