

Ever since we found out that Rian Johnson's follow up to The Force Awakens would be titled Star Wars: The Last Jedi we've been speculating about what exactly that could mean, and it looks like we weren't the only ones. Josh Gad (Frozen, Beauty and the Beast) is currently shooting the Murder on the Orient Express remake with none other than Daisy Ridley, and the actor took the opportunity to call his co-star to his trailer under false pretenses in order to grill her for information. Daisy, to her credit, is game to play along for the laugh, but she remains as tight lipped as you'd expect on the matter - only willing to agree that yes, it is an ominous title. The video is still well worth a watch, however, as we do find out that Olaf will be back for Frozen 2!

I invited #daisyridley to my trailer under false pretenses.
