

We are 9 days away from finally seeing John Carter on the big screen. Never thought I would say that, really. But, last night in Burbank, California, LA Times' Hero Complex held a IMAX early screening for the Andrew Stanton-directed film, and our friends over at The John Carter Files captured some of the reactions on video after the screening from people who saw it. Check it out: As you can see, everyone liked it. And they are not the only one. Based on reactions from before that we posted, John Carter seems to be a big surprise for those who doubted Stanton's ability to direct this adaptation of the century-old story that inspired some of the biggest films, characters and books. And as many who saw the film said, that very first trailer captures the tone of the overall film, so I'm posting it once again... You can follow @JohnCarter film on

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=55491&t=VIDEO_People_Give_Their_Reaction_After_Seeing_Andrew_Stantons_JOHN_CARTER