

We may never know the real reason why Marvel Studios President Kevin Feige decided against making The Inhumans, though it's widely believed that it has something to do with the rift between him and Marvel Entertainment CEO Isaac Perlmutter. The property is still heading to the biggest of big screens as IMAX look set to premiere the first two episodes, but these characters will now live on television. Someone unhappy about that is Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2 star Vin Diesel, and the actor - who has frequently campaigned for the role of Black Bolt - had this to say about Marvel's apparent mistake. "I don't think Marvel should abandon their opportunity to make a film out of it," he said. "I think it could be a huge, huge saga, and if I had more time I would go over to Marvel and have that very conversation. But I think it would be a big mistake for Marvel to abandon their ambitions

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/inhumans/vin-diesel-thinks-marvel-is-making-a-mistake-not-bringing-the-inhumans-a148365>