

Timur Bekmambetov, who was the man behind the camera for the first film, is currently filming Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter, so when MTV was able to get a few moments with Wanted producer, Jim Lemley, they asked him about the status of the sequel to the Angelina Jolie starred film. His response maintains the rumors we've been hearing: that a sequel could still happen. Angelina Jolie has stated that her character is dead and that she would not be returning for a sequel and here is what Lemley had to say about the topic: "We still talk sometimes about 'Wanted 2,'" he told MTV News. "We want to try and continue that story because it's a very interesting one for us. The reality is we love [Jolie] and we'd love to do it with her, but also that story has such a big idea behind it that it can also go on

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/geekboymovienews/news/?a=37850&t=iWantedi_Producer_Still_Talks_of_a_Sequel