

We recently learned that Chris Terrio rewrote Ben Affleck and Geoff Johns' The Batman screenplay, but a worrying report surfaced yesterday claiming that it was set to receive yet another rewrite which could essentially see it started over from scratch. Well, you can consider that pretty much debunked as it appears as if we may finally have some good news about the Dark Knight's next big screen outing! Batman-News recently reached out to Variety reporter Justin Kroll, a very reliable source of information who is tuned into the movie biz in a far more significant way than anyone at Forbes and the site received a positive update about whether things stand with The Batman. In fact, both Affleck and President and Chief Content Officer Toby Emmerich are said to be "very happy" with the script.

@BatmanNewsCom No, several sources already saying new script came in this month and everyone including Emmerich and Ben very happy with it — Justin Kroll (@krolljvar) February 9, 2017 Good news at last then,

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman/warner-bros-and-ben-affleck-reportedly-very-happy-with-the-batmans-script-a148837>