

In the wake of confirmation that 20th Century Fox was losing the character's rights to Marvel, initial director Joe Carnahan has offered an idea for what he had planned for their Daredevil reboot. After requesting and quickly gaining 6,000 followers on Twitter, Carnahan revealed not one, but two sizzle reels; differentiating in ratings. DAREDEVIL NC-17: youtu.be/92cVd9HalHs via @youtubeThe more violent version. More clips from the prior DD movie. More gruesome.— Joe Carnahan (@carnojoe) August 15, 2012 DAREDEVIL: youtu.be/_j5rb3R5iWs via @youtubeThe more PG-13 version. More comic panels. Less violent.— Joe Carnahan (@carnojoe) August 15, 2012 These two “sizzle reels” surely showcase the “Frank Miller-esque, hardcore 70s thriller” direction sources claim Joe Carnahan pitched to Fox, which he says “everyone flipped for.” What do you think?

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=65727>