

One of the most anticipated titles for DC's new 52 re-launch for me was defiantly Aquaman. No it is not because I love the character or he is near and dear to my heart. It is because Aquaman has been such a joke in the DC universe that I wanted to see what Geoff Johns would do with him. Johns has had a successful run with Green Lantern and did really well with Flashpoint, so I was interested to see if he could take a character, such as Aquaman, and turn him around in to a decent character. Throughout the years I have always thought that he had potential to be a break out character, but no writer has properly handled him. So here are my thoughts on Aquaman's solo title in Dc's new 52. As always I have made the attempt to avoid them, but be warned potential spoilers

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=47320&t=Waylon_Weighs_In_A_Review_Of_Aquaman_1