

When hearing about the new DC 52 I was extremely skeptical. Why would you reboot so many iconic characters and stories? As information started to roll out I became less and less skeptical. First major news to come out was that all-star writer Geoff Johns and award winning artist Jim Lee would be handling the new Justice League. This to me was great news, I wasn't this excited about a DC writer/artist team up since Jeph Loeb and Lee worked on Hush together. Earlier Josh Wilding posted some reviews from other sites about what they thought of the first issue of Justice League. So I decided to give you guys some one on this sites perspective on it and do a review my self. While I have made my best effort not to, be warned of possible spoilers. Justice League starts us off deep in the heart of Gotham in typical Batman

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=45570&t=Waylon_Weighs_In_A_Review_Of_Justice_League_1