

(Left to right) Charity Wakefield, Eddie Izzard, Mason Cook, Portia de Rossi, and Jerry O'Connell. NBC's remake of The Munsters will be told from Herman's (Jerry O'Connell) point of view. A man/monster that was created by his father-in-law, Grandpa Munster (Eddie Izzard). He will struggle with his body always being in state of decay while being married to a woman that never ages, Lily Munster (Portia de Rossi). What sets the story in motion though is Eddie Munster, Herman's son, who has been normal his whole life, but all of a sudden experiences a hairy transformation in the pilot episode. The family had hidden it's monstrous qualities from Eddie and now that the wolf is out of the bag they feel as though it is time to share with Eddie who they really are. This version of the Munsters is created by Bryan Fuller, the father of Pushing Daisies. If he can

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=64674>