

Walt Disney Pictures has provided Adventuresbydaddy.com with the question-and-answer interview with Willem Dafoe, who is playing/voicing the green Martian warrior Tars Tarkas via motion capture in the Andrew Stanton-directed film John Carter, a science fiction epic based on the classic novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Thanks to Barsoomia for the heads up. Check it out below. "When I saw you leap into the sky, I wished to believe it was a sign that something new can come into this world." How did you get involved in "John Carter"? Willem Dafoe: "I was very lucky because the project was quite far along in its casting when I came around. I was in Los Angeles, where I rarely am because I don't live there. I knew Andrew was meeting with people for "John Carter" and since I had worked with him before and was aware of the project, I said that I'd

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=52351&t=Willem Dafoe Talks About JOHN CARTER Playing Tars Tarkas Edgar Rice Burroughs More