

Logan director James Mangold was up late last night sharing a trio of unbelievable new photos from his upcoming March release, which will see Academy Award-nominee Hugh Jackman don his famous claws for the very last time. The highly anticipated X-Men spin-off sequel, which will see Wolverine thrust into a post-apocalyptic world where the rest of his X-Men team are seemingly dead, will also feature Patrick Stewart, Dafne Keen, Stephen Merchant, Boyd Holbrook, and Richard E. Grant. The first of the photos is one that will surely grace more than a handful of desktop backgrounds in the near future as it features Wolverine in a familiar stance, walking straight toward the camera down a lonely road that he knows all too well. The second two are storyboard drawings showcasing Wolverine arriving at a hotel and then one with him unsheathing his deadly claws. We also have one shot of another location from the movie. Check out all four photos below: Open A photo posted by

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/the\_wolverine/wolverine-walks-a-lonely-road-in-a-haunting-new-photo-from-a146427