

Back in 2010, a rumor surfaced online saying that there is a possibility of a new sequel to 28 Days Later and 28 Weeks Later. Until now, we haven't heard anything that could confirm or deny this report. While talking to Dread Central about Dredd, writer Alex Garland was asked if there is any truth to this, and if he could set the record straight. Here is what Garland had to say: "I'm still so proud of 28 Days Later and how well it's been received over the years so I appreciate that. But in regards to another movie, no- there are no plans for a 28 Months Later or whatever they were calling it. This is a series I've always been heavily involved with between the original and the sequel so if there were plans for another movie, I would absolutely know about it." There you go. I guess we won't be
