

We've already taken a look at some of Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice's harder to spot cameos, but now another has been revealed courtesy of the movie's cinematographer Larry Fong. It turns out that director Zack Snyder doubled for Ben Affleck's Bruce Wayne during the scene where the billionaire reaches for a phone during his investigation into the Man of Steel. So, it was obviously nothing major! Still, this is pretty interesting and just goes to show how much happens in movies like this that we don't know about or think of. After all, it's fair to say that 99.9% of us would have just assumed those were Affleck's hands or simply not given the moment a second thought! As it turns out, though, those hands belonged to Snyder, and that technically means he actually played Bruce Wayne (for a second at least).

@theLupeXperienc @larryfong @IMAX my goodness it's so damn hard to choose this movie has so so many amazing shots/sequences, this

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman_vs_superman/zack-snyder-made-a-cameo-appearance-in-batman-v-superman-a147839