

Regardless of whether you loved or hated Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice, there's no denying that the Caped Crusader at least managed to emerge relatively unscathed (well, apart from being a serial murderer). Our first look at Ben Affleck suited up came courtesy of Clay Enos, but director Zack Snyder has now shared an image on Vero (via Batman-News) offering up a very cool alternate shot. 6 Of The Dumbest Comic Book Battles Between BATMAN And SUPERMAN In some ways, it would have been better if this had been our first look at the Dark Knight as it would have kept us guessing in terms of what the suit actually looked like while also providing up a pretty iconic shot of the hero. Instead, we got a lot of "Fatman" jokes, but Affleck ended up looking pretty awesome in the movie itself. Let us know your thoughts on this image in the comments section below.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman_vs_superman/zack-snyder-shares-a-beautiful-new-shot-of-the-dark-knight-a147577