

Back before Zack Snyder signed on for Watchmen there was talk of him revisiting the horror genre with another Zombie movie, though not a sequel to his previous remake of George Romero's Dawn Of The Dead. This movie was to be called Army Of The Dead and would deal with a father who is trying to free his daughter from a quarantined Las Vegas, with the government building a wall around the city to contain the spread. But plans for the movie seemed to fall by the wayside as Snyder went on to bring us Watchmen and is now tied up with Man Of Steel. Well it appears the movie is back on (with Snyder as producer, and IF the studio decides to move forward) but with The Thing's Matthijs van Heijningen Jr at the helm. While speaking to io9 the director let slip a few details, including the sick

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsraunts/news/?a=47824&t=Zack_Snyders_iArmy_Of_The_Dead_Might_Be_Back_On_Will_Feature_Rapist_Zombies