

The dust is finally settling on the box office juggernaut that is known as The Avengers. Marvel is now taking their next steps to complete their own version of "Phase Two". That starts with the production of Iron Man 3 which began shooting last month. Zak Penn was hired by Marvel to write The Avengers even before the first Iron Man movie was out. Penn wrote his treatment for the film but it was ultimately turned over to director Joss Whedon who put his own stamp on Earth's Mightiest Heroes. While talking with Crave Online Penn talked a little bit about how different the film turned out from when he started working on it to the finished product. "I think it turned out better. I think he did a fantastic job. I mean, look, I think that it's very similar in terms of what we imagined in our head, what the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=61988>